Germany has much coal. Italy has little. Hence Germany gives coal to Italy and receives in return other raw materials needed to feed her huge war machine. Here are many tons of German coal rolling over Brenner Pass into Italy.

BUTCHER KNIFE CAUSES DEEP BACK WOUND

Chester St. Man in Serious Condition After Argument Leads to Battle.

Clarence Stiffler, 42, of 384 Chester street suffered a deep stab wound in the back in an altercation at his home about 6:15 p. m. yesterday and attendants at City hospital reported today that his condition is serious but not critical.

Held in connection with the stabbing is Alva Rosebrough, 45, who shared the Chester street residence with Stiffler. Police quoted Rosebrough as saying he cut Stiffler during a heated argument.

Rosebrough is being held on an open charge at City prison and Police Chief Marks said that a formal charge probably will be postponed for a day or two pending the outcome of Stiffler's injuries. He said that if Stiffler recovers Rosebrough will be charged with either cutting with intent to wound or cutting with intent to kill.

The attending physician reported Stiffler has a wound about four and a half inches deep and four inches long on the right side of the back and also is suffering from loss of blood. He said he would not be able to determine immediately whether the right lung is punctured.

Started at Supper

Both Stiffler and Rosebrough told Patrolman Lois Kirts and Homer Osmun, who conducted an investigation, that they had been drinking whisky, beer and hay rum during the afternoon and became involved in an argument at the supper table, the officers said.

Rosebrough said the altercation started when Stiffler grabbed a hatchet and struck him several times on the shoulder with the flat surface. Rosebrough said he then became enraged, grabbed a butcher knife from the table and stabbed Stiffler.

After the stabbing, Stiffler ran out the kitchen door and went next door to the Delbert Darnell home. Members of the Darnell family said that although they had heard quarreling at the Stiffler and Rosebrough home throughout the afternoon they were unaware of the fight until Stiffler staggered in the back door of the Darnell home.

After telling the Darnells that he had been stabbed during an argument with Rosebrough, Stiffler collapsed on the kitchen floor, police were told. Members of the Darnell family notified the police and the M. H. Gunder & Sons ambulance was called to remove Stiffler to the hospital.

Hid for Half Hour

Rosebrough told officers that he ran out the front door following the stabbing and hid behind a string of box cars on a siding at the north end of Chester street. In about a half an hour he returned home "to see how badly Stiffler got hurt," he was quoted as saying.

Police were unable to locate Rosebrough when they first started their investigation of the stabbing but when he returned home about 6:45 neighbors called police and he was taken into custody by patrolmen Lewis Cunningham and Justin Cornely.

The officers said they found the butcher knife, covered with blood, in a kitchen cabinet drawer where it apparently had been placed by one of the men following the stabbing. They reported they also found a broken hatchet on the kitchen floor.

Neighbors said the two men have lived together about 10 years and have kept house themselves. Although they have been almost inseparable they frequently quarreled, usually over trivial household matters, police were told. Both men have had only occasional employment, neighbors said, and Rosebrough is now on work relief rolls.

Civic Orchestra, Harding Singers Win Applause

All-Marion Program Hailed As Musicians' Best in Final Concert of Sixth Season.

By EDNA DUTTON

An All-Marion program with the Harding High school a cappella choir as guests brought to a close the sixth season of the Marion Civic orchestra last night in the First Presbyterian church. And what a program it was. The orchestra, directed by Abram Ruvinsky gave the best possible performance in each number, and the school choir of more than 60 boys and girls sang with an eagerness which belongs to youth and with a sensitiveness and balance which certainly delighted the audience and could have been nothing short of gratifying to the director, L. G. Jones, supervisor of music in the public schools.

The audience, smaller than some of the previous ones, came prepared to enjoy an evening of music to the fullest, and left feeling they had received more than was anticipated. Certainly it was one of the best concerts given by the orchestra, and there were many in the audience who acclaimed it the best. Both the orchestra and choir responded with encores and the prolonged applause at the close of the program indicated that more music from both would not be frowned upon. If the enthusiastic appreciation of last night's audience was interpreted correctly an "All-Marion" concert will be a "must" on the Civic Orchestra program each year.

Well-Balanced Program

As always, Mr. Ruvinsky chose a well balanced program, and the orchestra, through its performance, showed more than in any previous program what a long way it had come under his sensitive and intelligent leadership. The musicians played with assurance, clarity and a full measure of coloring.

The program opened with "Overture Egmont," by Beethoven, which was followed by the always welcome "Largo" from "New World Symphony" by Dvorak in which the theme "Goin' Home," is heard repeatedly.

The gay and spirited intermezzo from "Jewels of the Madonna" by Wolf-Ferrari proved a happy choice as was also the "Gold and Silver Waltz," Lehar which was responsible for the encore, "The Last Spring," by Grieg. Russian folk melody was heard in the festive Rimsky-Korsakoff number from the opera, "The Snow Maiden," and the closing number was the patriotic and spirited "Finlandia," by Sibelius. From the program notes, ably done this year and in previous ones by Mrs. Griselda Davis Dombaugh, we quote: "Finlandia was written in a spirit of patriotic protest when Finland was ruled by the old Russian government. The government was obliged to forbid the public performance of the work because of its exciting effect on the populace."

Choir's Numbers

If the audience voiced appreciation of one number more than another in the choir's first group it was for the Richter number, "Creation." Completing the group were "Bow Down Thine Ear," Haydn Morgan, "Nature's Praise of God," Beethoven and "Hospodi Pomilui," Lvovsky. Their second group included a spiritual, "My Lord What a Morning," Burleigh, "Emilie Spiritum Tuum," Father Joseph Shuetky, and an unusual and tricky number, "Echo Song," by O. di Lasso. For an encore they sang a Negro spiritual, "See Four and Twenty Elders."

During the intermission Walter D. Moore gave a talk in which he praised the work of the orchestra and choir, and also the Woman's

FOOD ORDERS FOR RELIEF CUT EIGHT PER CENT

Other Regulations Dismiss Employable Males with No Dependents.

New relief regulations in Marion city and county, including removal from the rolls of all employable males with no relative responsibilities and a reduction of eight per cent in the size of food orders, went into effect today.

The changes are made in accordance with a general retrenchment program throughout the state.

Director Frank S. Burns, viewing the new regulations favorably, estimated that approximately 25 employable males would be dropped from the city's rolls and probably a smaller number in the county.

Stiffening of the relief laws, officials believe, will create a better morale among the relief clients and cause many of the employables to "get out and dig a little harder" for private work.

Men Over 40 Exempt

Checking up so far on the new regulations has indicated forcibly that as far as employable persons are concerned the relief rolls are weighted down with men over the age of 40—too old to be acceptable to industry, yet too young to be eligible for pensions. Of 63 non-family employables on work relief in the city in April only about 25 were under 40.

Employable males over 40 are not affected by the new regulation which denies relief to non-family employable males with no dependents.

The reduction in the size of food orders puts the food orders back to where they were before last December when they were raised eight per cent.

Both the reduction in food and the paring of the relief rolls come as a result of lack of adequate finances, Mr. Burns said.

Other Changes

There are other changes effective today or under consideration—all making it more difficult for undeserving persons to obtain relief.

Under consideration is a plan to renew last winter's system of calling in the automobile license plates of the cars of relief clients. This system was dropped when the license year ended March 31, but it may be necessary to "take drastic action" in the near future, Mr. Burns said.

However, no system has been

BULLETINS

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, May 1—Unconfirmed reports said tonight that Norwegian forces had reoccupied Storen, vital railroad junction 35 miles south of Trondheim, possibly after German vanguards had abandoned it.

Similar advices said Roros, 50 miles farther southeast on the railroad from Oslo, also had been re-entered by the Norwegians.

The German withdrawals, however, were said to have been in line with the Nazi tactics of striking with lightning speed to smash allied communications and then of waiting for reinforcements before taking firm hold of advanced positions.

BULLETIN

LONDON, May 1—The war office announced today that British troops withdrew to prepared positions in the important Bombas area, 100 miles south of Trondheim, after stubbornly resisting strong German attacks.

• • •

By The Associated Press

Peril to the security of their flanks in northern and southern Europe had the Allied war leaders plainly worried today.

The menace in the north, where fast-driving German columns apparently have clamped a stranglehold on central Norway, was acknowledged by a British military spokesman who admitted that Nazi advances there had put the Allies in a "dangerous and very obscure" position.

The threat in the south was that Italy might throw her might into the Nazi scales. Britain, as a precaution, has ordered suspension of her merchant shipping traffic through the Mediterranean, and in Paris, a foreign ministry spokesman declared that the Italian attitude toward the Allies "has become definitely alarming" in the past two days.

Phillips Visits Mussolini

In Rome, United States Ambassador William Phillips visited Premier Mussolini to get first hand information on Italy's position and intentions.

British Prime Minister Chamberlain, who so far has made no public statement on the new Norwegian developments, informed the house of commons he would discuss the situation tomorrow.

Although the British spokesman made no attempt to dispute the German announcement that Nazi forces in Oslo and Trondheim have made contact, he questioned its importance.

"We must remember that what with demolitions and bombing, German communications will not be easy," he declared, adding that the contact "does not mean there is a constant flow of men and materials."

He said the British had no confirmation that the Germans had taken Dombas and Storen, vital railroad junctions in central Norway.

But he admitted that German reports of having occupied those centers may be true and that the British outlook in the Dombas area is dark.

Germany, meanwhile, raised new aerial blows on Britain's sea forces.

The British, without commenting directly on this report, merely said "desultory bombing" was continuing in the Namsos and Stenkjaer areas on the Norwegian Atlantic coast north of Trondheim.

Firm Hold in North

Both in Berlin and London, Nazis were indications that the Allies had a firm foothold in the Namsos sector, north of Trondheim.

The German command said the British had been unable—even in an attack on a Norwegian fort that was in a raid on Namsebu airport, near Oslo.

In London, the air ministry acknowledged the loss of seven planes, but said "heavy damage" had been inflicted in forays last night at Stavanger and Fornebu and at Aalsborg, Danish terminal of Germany's aerial troop ferry system.

The German also reported the seizure of considerable war material and more than 4,000 prisoners. It said 40 Britons and 200 officers and 3,500 men of the Norwegian second division, were seized at Lillehammer. Near Lorum, it said, 1,200 other enemy troops surrendered.

PRIVATE JOBS SHOW INCREASE

McNutt Reports Industry and Business Employing More Workers.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 1—Federal Security Administrator McNutt reported today that private employers had hired 18 per cent more persons during March than they did in the same month last year.

"Authoritative reports...." he said, "indicate that there is an increasing demand for workers in industry and commerce. Slowly but surely the level of the country's great reservoir of idle workers is falling...."

Despite the optimism voiced in McNutt's report, it was disclosed that congressional leaders were weighing a suggestion that additional funds be allocated to the WPA, should need arise before the fiscal year closes June 30. Approximately $1,500,000,000 already has been appropriated for relief up to that date.

Source of More Money

Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) said more WPA money could be obtained by dipping into the $975,000,000 relief appropriation which President Roosevelt has requested for the first eight months of the 1941 fiscal year beginning July 1. He said, however, that no decision had been reached.

WPA rolls on April 1 listed about 2,100,000 persons.

The figures on the March employment were made public by McNutt in a statement coincident with President Roosevelt's proclamation designating this as "national employment week."

In connection with the proclamation, McNutt instructed state directors of 1,600 federal employment bureaus and officers of the CCC, the national youth administration and the office of education to cooperate with civic organizations and private employers to find jobs for the unemployed.

"I suggest," he said, "that during this 'national employment week' there be set up 3,000 permanent local committees of representative citizens...to go over the whole federal and local governmental employment program and to keep constantly at work stimulating job placements."

GALION SENIOR FATALLY HURT

Death Follows Injury in Vocational Department Shop at School.

Special to The Star

GALION, O., May 1 — Richard Danner, 18, popular Galion High school senior who was hurt in an accident yesterday morning in the vocational department shop at the school, died today at 8:10 a. m. at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Danner of Galion.

Dr. Mark Helfrich, the attending physician, said after an autopsy this morning that death was due to a blood clot in the heart, rupture in the stomach and other internal injuries. The autopsy was conducted at the Snyder funeral home.

According to Charles Aplas, vocational coordinator, Danner was working against instructions and without taking safety precautions when the accident occurred about 10 a. m. yesterday.

Working on File

The coordinator said Danner was working on a file in a lathe and had his stomach pressed against the wooden handle of the file. The file caught in the chuck, an appendage of the lathe, and kicked back, the wooden handle giving Danner a severe jolt in the stomach.

For a short time Danner did not complain of being hurt, but when pain started, he was sent home in a taxi and a physician was called. There was no external evidence of any injury, it was reported.

This morning when Danner arose to go to the bathroom he apparently became dizzy and fell forward, flat on his stomach on the bathroom hall. He died a short time later.

Danner was captain of this year's basketball team and was organizer of the school's golf club which last Saturday tied Marion Harding players in a game at the Marion Country club.

Active in School Sports

In the game last Saturday he was the high scorer, turning in a card of 47-43—90. Last year he was captain of the school's golf team and this year he formed a club of high school players. During the basketball season he played guard position.

He was born in Galion, the son of Dewey and Beryl Harding Danner. Besides his parents he leaves a brother, Robert, of Galion, a sister, Betty, at home, and the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Harding and Mr. and Mrs. William Danner of Galion vicinity.

Danner was a member of the Galion United Brethren church.

STATE HIGHWAY PATROL IN NEW QUARTERS TODAY

Sub-Station Now Located on East N. Main St.

The Marion sub-station of the state highway patrol was opened today in its new location at 320 North Main street.

The new quarters, in part of the W. C. Bailey residence, consist of a large office room, a cellar room for record files and lockers and a bathroom. The former quarters was located at the rear entrance of the Courthouse annex, on the second floor, directly behind the county prosecutor's office.

Sergeant Ralph Hall, the sub-station's only full time officer, announced that the five officers assigned here would be on duty at all times from the new sub-station. The former station was located on Route 23—but not on

ITALIAN BLASTS ALARM ALLIES

Britain Orders Ships To Avoid Mediterranean As Rome Attitude Stiffens.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 1—Great Britain, alarmed by growing signs of Italian hostility and intimations that Italy might join Germany in war, has diverted her lifeline shipping from the Mediterranean.

Pronouncements by Italians in responsible positions and the attitude of the Italian press have been recently of such a character as to make it necessary for his majesty's government to take precautions as regards British shipping which would normally pass through the Mediterranean," said an authoritative statement.

The order that Britain's shipping use the long Cape of Good Hope route around Africa to sidestep Italian power in the Mediterranean was represented as a temporary precaution—to be enforced only as long as necessary.

A source close to the foreign office declared "we should frankly deprecate too much attention being paid to the notice that his majesty's government has closed the Mediterranean for through traffic."

Precautionary Measure

He described the measure as "purely precautionary and of a defensive character," added that it is the government's "Earnest hope" that the measure prove temporary and declared the Britain still were hopeful of reopening trade negotiations with Italy.

The measures are a result of certain utterances "which seem provocative," the authority said, and the government decided that in the present situation "every precaution must be taken" on all fronts.

At the outbreak of the war Britain routed her merchant ships around the cape for a while, but Italy's non-belligerent status seemed assured.

70 Per Cent Of Farmers Signed for AAA Program

1940 Benefits Expected To Total $300,000 for Marion Co.

Deadline for Marion county's farmers to join in the federal government's 1940 farm program fell today with an estimated 70 per cent signed up, the county AAA committee reported.

The committee expressed satisfaction with the extent of cooperation indicated. It compares favorably with last year.

An exact figure on the number of farmers who have signified their intention to cooperate in the program will not be available for several days, since some of the township committeemen have not made complete reports. However it is expected to be around 1,500. There are approximately 2,100 farms in the county.

The 1,500 or so farmers who have signed up are now eligible to earn cash benefits for the cooperation and also to participate in the federal crop insurance and wheat loan programs.

It has been estimated Marion county farmers can earn as much as $460,000 this year. The actual payments probably will be about the same total as last year, something over $300,000.

The county committee next will prepare to compute tentative wheat acreage allotments for the fall and also for making the first checkup of planted crops. The checkup will come probably in June. A second checkup will be made later to determine further the extent to which the farmers have cooperated in the program. The checkups determine the amount of payments due the farmer.

HOUSE COMMITTEE KILLS HATCH BILL

Judiciary Body Orders Measure Tabled.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 1—The house judiciary committee killed today the senate-approved Hatch bill to regulate political activities of state employes paid with federal funds.

The committee ordered the bill "tabled," meaning that it will be stuffed away in a pigeonhole.

The vote was not announced and Chairman Sumners, Democrat of Texas, refused to discuss the matter beyond making the bare announcement of disposal of the measure.

In addition to restricting the political activities of state employes paid in whole or in part with federal funds, the measure also would have limited personal campaign contributions to $5,000.

Group in Pittsburgh Offers Million Dollar Reward for Hitler's Capture

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 1—A Pittsburgh group offered today to pay a million dollar reward for the capture of Adolf Hitler, unhurt, but specified that the German fuehrer must be delivered into the custody of the League of Nations before the end of May.

Samuel Harden Church, president of the $28,000,000 Carnegie Institute, announced the offer on behalf of an unnamed group which he said was acting "in good faith," in a letter to the New York Times.

The unusual proposal brought back recollections of a daring post-World war scheme of a group of American soldiers to kidnap the German kaiser from his exile in Holland.

In his letter, Church said that Hitler should be delivered "for trial before a high court of justice for his crimes against the peace and dignity of the world."

Church said in a telephone interview with the Times that the proposal had been discussed for some time among some members of the Duquesne club of Pittsburgh, after private advices received from anyone [illegible] planned an attempt to [illegible] through the [illegible] Shortly after the [illegible] 1918 a band of [illegible] and carried [illegible] Col. MECHANIZATION HOPE OF MINING INDUSTRY

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., May 1—Future success of the coal industry lies in mechanization, W. J. B. Mayo of Pittsburgh told delegates to the American mining congress here today.

He said a real challenge was presented to mine management by shrinking markets and declining prices and "mechanization is the brightest hope for the coal industry's future."

Concerning employment, Mayo declared that mechanization in the mining industry started in 1890 when 190,000 men were employed in bituminous fields, compared to 400,000 in 1935, indicating a steady increase in employment.

Livestock Sales Yard To Be Built Near Caledonia

Organization of the Caledonia Livestock Sales Co. and plans for starting operations about mid-June in a structure now being built near Caledonia were announced today.

The company, headed by a group of residents of Caledonia and vicinity, was incorporated recently for $25,000. The officers are Robert H. Allen, president; C. M. Pommert, vice president, and N. D. Hill, secretary-treasurer. These men, together with James Hummer and Chester Lyon, make up the board of directors. Mr. Hummer has been chosen sales manager and Mr. Lyon, general manager.

Construction Work Begun

The auction building, in which the company will hold weekly auction sales on days to be announced later, is now under construction just east of Caledonia on the north side of Route 30-S. It measures 80 by 122 feet and will house the office, pen space for about 2,000 head, scales and alleys. There will also be pen space outside. The building will be a frame structure and is on a three-acre tract purchased recently by the company.

The company will operate a general livestock sales business serving Caledonia and vicinity. WHEAT PRICES FALL, THEN REGAIN PART

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 1—Wheat prices tumbled as much as three cents a bushel today to the lowest levels since before the invasion of Scandinavia but then recovered some of the loss.

Selling in connection with continued heavy marketing of grain and Rome reports indicating there will be no sudden change in Italy's non-belligerent position uncovered stop loss liquidation that gained headway as prices declined. Liquidation of May contracts, on which first deliveries were made today, also was a market factor while the trade had several reports of improved and favorable crop conditions.

Wheat closed 1¾-2¼ lower than yesterday, May $1.04¾-1.05¼, July $1.04⅛-½; corn ⅝-1⅛ down, May 64, July 64⅜-½; oats ⅜-⅝ lower.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANK REPORTS LIMITED BUYING

Department Store Sales Gain Less Than Seasonally.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, May 1—The federal reserve bank of Cleveland reported today "limited retail buying" in March and April in consumers' goods lines.

Department store sales in the Fourth district "rose less than seasonally in March and the adjusted sales index fell to 94.9 per cent of the 1923-25 average, a drop of over nine points from the December peak," the bank said in its month's business survey.

Blind Musician Moves to Marion; Honored at Farewell in Columbus

Former Crestline Resident To Carry on Work of Teaching, Playing and Composing.

After a residence of more than half a century in Columbus, Arthur F. Kellogg, blind musician, composer and instructor will make his home in Marion. While he keenly regrets leaving his many friends who have made his residence in Columbus a most pleasant one, he is happy to come to Marion to be near his relatives, his aunt, Mrs. Anna Marie Shultz and his cousin, Mrs. Pauline Barnhouse of 150 Boone avenue. Mr. Kellogg is making his home with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Green of 478 Olney avenue where he will maintain a studio.

Among the farewell courtesies extended him before leaving Columbus was a reception at the Broad Street Methodist church where he has played regularly for the children since 1913.

Former Crestline Resident

Mr. Kellogg went to Columbus from Crestline and at the State School for the Blind he was given an opportunity for education and received treatment for his vision. Despite all that could be done he lost his vision when he was 20 years of age. He developed his talent for music and through the help of competent teachers became a teacher of voice, violin and piano. One of his songs, "Sheila" was made popular on the radio by John Charles Thomas, and other compositions are "Teach Me the Right Way to Live," and "Fulfillment," hymns. He set to music the words of Kipling's poem, "Mother O' Mine," which he dedicated to his own mother in 1937, a year after her death. His latest work is an arrangement for the piano based on the theme, "Happy Birthday." The number will be dedicated to J. B. Francis McDowell of Columbus, a pianist, organist and composer, and one of his best friends.

Mr. Kellogg is no stranger to Marion and the city is no stranger to him. "I love the town, the people are friendly and I know I could make my way around if my friends could only be made to think so," he says. While I regretted leaving Columbus, I know I am going to be very happy here.

Given Piano

When Mr. Kellogg came to Marion he brought with him as a gift from friends a 100-year old Chickering piano which has played an important part in his musical career. In addition to his piano work he teaches voice and violin.

Mr. Kellogg played and sang at Epworth Methodist church on May 31, 1936 and the following July was a guest musician on a program of the Kiwanis club. On a number of occasions he has been guest organist at Wesley Methodist church.

He plans to play engagements and will teach.

STOCK PRICES EASE UP TODAY

Traders Cautious on News of German Victories in Norway Campaign.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 1—Stock prices eased today as traders, made dubious by reports of German victories in Norway, dabbled only tentatively in the market.

Every eye followed the war news.

Retreating shares included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, United Aircraft, Sperry, Kennecott, American Smelting, General Electric, Loft and Western Auto Supply.

Bonds paralleled the stock trend. Commodities were uneven. The Amsterdam bourse was fairly steady, but markets in London and Paris slipped.

Easiness in steel shares came in the face of a comment by "Iron Age" that the industry showed signs of improvement.

YESTERDAY: Brenda learns that Linda left because Hugh advised Linda's fugitive brother to give himself up for theft. Brenda appeals to Miss Ormond to help get Linda back. Judge Harper comes to Brenda with a strange letter he has received.

Silly Mess

"READ it," the Judge commanded. Brenda took the letter.

"So my dear, I'll no longer pretend with you. I've known your secret for months, I may say for years. My heart's beloved, free yourself of the shackles of conventionality and come to me. Let the dead past bury its dead (after all, lover, your wife has been absent from your side for many years), and turn the page and make a new start. I know, you see; I've known all along; ever since I was a little girl. There! Doesn't that clear the path for you, dearest of deare?

"Maud."

Brenda's hand with the letter in it fell helplessly at her side. The confusion of metaphors, the absurd taking for granted what she wished to believe was eminently characteristic of Maud Van Ness; but never would the younger girl have believed the prim old maid would summon courage enough to write the Judge as she had done.

sion began to chill her. Maud had said it had been Brenda's attitude toward life which had broken down her reserves. Was she henceforth to be held responsible for all that went on in The Street? She tried frantically to remember the substance of her conversation with Maud the day she had lunched with her; but it had been such an unpleasant experience that she had quickly forgotten it.

"Well?" asked the Judge shakily. "What am I to do about it? You see, she says you advised her—"

"I didn't! I'm perfectly sure I didn't!"

"At any rate," he continued, not rebukingly but more as summing up impartially the facts for the jury, "I've lived on this Street with Maud for nearly half a century, and never a word did I hear out of her on such a subject until you came here!"

"Oh, Judge Harper!" she cried forlornly.

"I'm not blaming you, child. I know that in New York, and especially with your generation, the solemnity and deep respect with which we older folk have held—still do hold—love and marriage have gone by the board."

There were tears in her eyes, but she held her head a trifle higher.

"I beg your pardon, Judge, but you're mistaken—so far as some of us are concerned so far as I am concerned. I respect love and marriage just as much as any one can do. And—and I don't think it's fair to hold me responsible for a letter sent you by—by a woman who told me herself that she—she——" She stopped abruptly, ashamed to betray poor Maud.

The call, she thought afterward, went from bad to worse. The Judge was gentle with her, was considerate, but it was perfectly evident he was convinced in his own mind that the daughter of his old friend had been acting upon the advice—general or specific as the case might be—of this young writer from New York who had had a good deal to say about dealing frankly and realistically with life's problems.

Brenda did her best to disclaim any part in the affair but it was difficult to exonerate herself.

"And he's wise, he's known all sorts of people, their motives for doing all sorts of things," she mused in surprise.

Absorbed In Cacti

She put the question to Mac that night despairingly. He had been the last person she wished to know about it; in fact, when the judge went sorrowfully away just before noon with not a grain of that sophisticated advice on his problem that he had come for, she had planned frantically to keep Mac from hearing of the silly mess.

But it was one of the rare evenings when they happened to be alone for a few minutes in the living room. Isobel had gone out gown and wearing make-up delicately applied by Brenda's own expert hand. Adelaide was to return from Springfield sometime on the following day.

Mac sat smoking in his favorite leather chair; and suddenly he looked so dependable, so strong, so thoroughly understanding, that the girl found herself pouring the whole sorry story into his ears.

"I've gone over what he said to me—what I said to her—that day at luncheon, five hundred times," she finished feverishly. "And I simply can not remember one word that would encourage her to write a letter like that!"

"No, of course you didn't encourage her," he answered her. "Back up, Brenda, and I'll prove that you didn't. Remember the evening after you'd talked to Maud? When you and I took a drive together and rowed a little more fiercely than usual? I've no doubt the fight put all previous conversation out of your mind, but it happens that I remember it clearly. I asked you if Maud had told you about the Judge, and you said she had, and you called her a poor foolish woman; and I said you were a swell sport to let her rave about her delusions to you—or words to that effect. Remember?"

"Oh, Mac, I'm beginning to! You said you did think I might be a writer because I was interested in people—"

"And then you had to spoil it all by declaring you were going to further the match between Alaine and Ned Barrow, and we—sort of—"

She was sufficiently cheered to give her own endearing chuckle.

"We did, indeed! I believe we drove in icy silence for something like six miles afterward. But, Mac, you'll admit I was right—about Ned? They're having a simply heavenly time out at the farm with that greenhouse. Ned calls for them every morning and they take a lunch and stay all day. You will admit you were wrong?"

He took his pipe from his mouth and grinned.

"Poor little Brenda! You've got an awful shock coming."

"I?" She spread one small hand above her heart. "What is it?"

"Ned's so absorbed in cacti and whatnot that he's lost all interest in Alaine; at least in marrying her, I mean. He's bought about a million books on grafting and pollenization and Lord knows what else, and when he isn't reading 'em, he's out in the farm experimenting. Sometimes he gets up in the middle of the night and drives out just to be sure the temperature is right."

Not Really In Love

"How—how do you know?"

"Ab was telling me yesterday. Ab's tickled pink, of course. He keeps his twin and he gains a greenhouse besides—to say nothing of those hairy, spiky things he and Ned go into raptures about.

"You see, my dear, Ned wasn't really in love with Alaine. I said so all along. He was lonely, and he had this genuine interest in botany without knowing it, and he wanted like everything to insert himself in the twins' partnership. Now he has, and he's happy. So's Ab."

"B-but Alaine?" she stammered, the full import of her wrecked plans dawning upon her. Had she moved heaven and earth to bring Alaine and Ned together, merely to break poor Alaine's heart in the end?

"Alaine's happy, too," he comforted her. "The twins, what with no one else living with them and practically no separate interests, were getting on each other's nerves. Now they have Ned to whet their irritation on, Ned to support—financially and otherwise—their wildest floral ambitions. All, consequently, is well."

She glanced at him with new respect.

"But how—how did you know that Ned wasn't really in love with Alaine?"

He kept his eyes on his pipe which he was refilling, tamping the tobacco down with alternate forefingers.

"I've been in love myself," he informed her briefly. "I know the symptoms. Ned didn't have 'em!"

"Oh!" she said in a small voice.

Silence fell on the room; a silence presently broken by the sound of rain on the panes.

"Any windows up?" he inquired. I'd better go see. And I'll not be down, Brenda. I've got a lot of work to do before I go to bed."

"But, Mac! You haven't told me what to do about that letter? About the Judge? About—about Maud!"

He stood in the doorway, frowning with concentration.

"Do nothing," he said finally. "Especially about Maud. I'll drop a hint to the Judge. Now"—he put up a hand to stop her protest—"it's not a betrayal of Maud's confidence to you. Gosh, girl, do you think you're the only 'contemporary' Maud has confided in? She'd told me that yarn about the Judge having adored her since her childhood more times than I can count. You leave the whole thing to me," he reassured her.

"Mac, I am grateful! I wish I knew how to—to return the favor!"

He said surprisingly: "Trot out those dimples for a minute, to cheer me through my lonely hours of toil!"

ABOUT ANYTHING

In and Around Marion

More Hitching Rings

Fire Chief T. J. McFarland called us to one side the other day about the item that appeared recently in this column about the hitching ring at Center and State streets, an unremoved relic of bygone days.

"If you'd look, you'd find a whole row of them on North State street across from The Star office," he said.

We looked. The rings, small ones along the curb line, probably are unnoticed by most persons who pass by. The larger rings that once were looped through them to serve as the actual hitching ring have been removed.

All this makes us wonder if there are any roadside watering troughs for horses left in Marion county.

Camera Pioneers

Photography is practiced by hundreds of Marion residents, but when the photographic art was in its early stages, there were few persons hardy enough to go into it, especially outdoor photography.

It used to require some 40 pounds of equipment, including a tent, to take outdoor photographs, and that's a man-sized pack for anyone. The photographer had to set up his tent, which was in effect a portable darkroom, mix up the chemicals required to sensitize a plate and put the plate into the camera before he could take a picture. Despite this and the long exposures required for the old, slow emulsion films, many photographs that compare favorably with any taken today have been handed down by pioneer picture takers.

In contrast to the bulky equipment required years ago, many modern cameras are so small they can almost be concealed in the palm of one hand, and some trick cameras are even smaller, being disguised as watches and cane heads.

Underwater Movies

One Marion man is planning to have some unusual experiences with underwater moving pictures this coming summer. He has rigged up a watertight box for his expensive moving picture camera, and is all set for the opening of the boating and swimming season.

The camera can be lowered from a boat to almost any desired depth, and can be "turned on" by a small cord operated from the boat. The only hitch is that there's no way to tell exactly what area is being photographed. However, the operator can tell in a general way what he's getting.

The box protecting the camera from water is of metal. The bottom is attached by thumbscrews which pull it tightly against a sponge rubber gasket that will keep all water out. A small window made out of optical glass also is mounted in a manner to make it water tight. There's a small tube through which a bicycle spoke is passed from the inside to the outside of the box by which the operator can trip the shutter whenever he wants to start taking pictures. This, also is packed in a way to make it water-tight. A small winch is provided to lower the unit to any desired depth.

Underwater pictures of fish, of swimmers and of fish biting on all manner of bait are among some of the possibilities. With color film in the camera, the owner hopes to get some interesting pictures. Someone has offered him the use of a home-made helmet that would let him accompany his camera to depths of around 30 feet, but he's still uncertain about trying this, although it would have the advantage of enabling him to see exactly what he's taking.

New Helicopter Brings Family Air Travel Nearer

By DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor

DAYTON, O., April 30 — Prospects for the ultimate manufacture of a family flying machine with a good deal of the cross-country utility of an automobile have been brightened considerably by an almost unnoticed event last week at Wright field.

Army aero laboratory bids were received then for the construction of rotating wing aircraft in lots of one and ten as observation machines capable of very slow or hovering flight.

Nine bidders appeared. At least two of them submitted figures for machines of the helicopter type, which take off straight up and can land in a space no bigger than an average backyard.

It was the first time in the history of American aeronautics that a helicopter designer seriously bid on an air corps contract and it served to bring into the open for the first time the prodigious amount of work which American engineers have been doing in the rotating wing field.

If good helicopters can be made for the army, they can be made in commercial form for private flying.

The true helicopter, which is not to be confused with the gyroplane or autogiro, would, at last, provide the common citizen with a personal flying machine which would not need an airport at the edge of the city for its operation. Moreover, its design would make for inherent safety.

Most of today's air accidents stem from the need for speed to keep an airplane aloft. If the speed drops below a certain point in flight, the wing "stalls" and frequently a fatal spin follows. In landing, a conventional plane needs plenty of space to get its wheels on the ground.

In true helicopters power from the engine is applied directly to a rotor or "windmill," which acts as the wing, to make vertical ascent and descent possible. If the engine stops, the rotor is released for auto-rotation by an over-running clutch, and it continues to provide lift in vertical descent until the machine is on the ground.

The family helicopter will not come tomorrow, or even next year, but the intensive engineering work now going on makes its appearance on the market inevitable, in the opinion of many men engaged in aeronautical research.

YOUR HEALTH

Nature's Remedies

RESIGNATION is a Roman virtue that seems to have died out of the modern world, especially when it comes to sickness. People hear about all the wonders of modern medicine, so they think the doctor should pull some brand new remedy out of the hat which will cure them right away and save them the necessity of suffering.

Sometimes the modern remedies do more harm than good and it would do better to depend on Nature's own means of cure which, though a little slower, are surer and less fraught with complications.

Doctors are not immune to this urge to take some new remedy. A colleague of mine had a little cold. It was not very bad; a little more severe than usual, but it hung on. He went south for a week or two. When I saw him I said, "How do you feel?" He said, "I can't understand it. I'm not sick but I feel so weak. I've done everything for this cold; I've even taken sulfapyridine." Well, no wonder he felt weak. It was probably due to the sulfapyridine. Nature and sunshine, if let alone, probably would have cured his cold.

Children Especially

All this applies especially to children. Nature's great remedies of rest, and time, and water, and sunshine work well with babies because they have another great natural reserve force to help them out, which is the dynamo of young life.

Doctors should tell parents the story of the woman who went into the toy store and said to the proprietor, "But your toys are so old!" He replied, "Yes, madam, but the children are new." Nature's remedies are old but they work well on the new crop of children.

At the beginning of any illness a child appears desperately sick and the young doctor too often thinks of something that is spectacular. He wants to give a new drug or a blood transfusion, whereas time and rest and water will bring about relief in due time without any danger. Water, internally or by cold sponge baths, will do more to help a fever than many a capsule of a drug.

Study of the Sky Presented in Word and Picture.

[illegible] of the Marion Rotary [illegible] guests were taken on a [illegible] pictorial tour of the [illegible]day with John H. Karr, [illegible] astronomer of Athens, [illegible] guide.

[illegible], a public school teach[illegible]as made a hobby of as[illegible] for approximately 30 years, reviewed many interesting facts regarding the millions of heavenly bodies and explained the amazing accuracy achieved by astronomers in measuring the vast dimensions and distances of the solar system. His talk was illustrated with stereopticon views of various stars and planets as well as statistical charts.

Study of the sky and its inspiring spectacle provides convincing proof of the existence of God as a ruling and guiding power, Mr. Karr said. "No person can look through a telescope over a period of years as I have done and doubt the presence of a divine Creator and Ruler," he declared.

To express this belief as the basic theme of his talk and pictures, the inscription, "The Heavens declare the glory of God" is shown on the picture screen to start his series of stereopticon views. This is followed by a photo of his mother, who inspired Mr. Karr to make the study of astronomy a lifetime practice by viewing the wonders of the skies with him as a child.

In opening his talk he voiced the opinion that four fundamentals are essential in a young person's education. These he gave as: first, respect for father and mother; second, appreciation of the advantages and privileges made possible by state and nation; third, acquiring ability to do something, to fill a niche in life's affairs, no matter how large or small; fourth, to have respect for all things which should be viewed reverently, and it was here he declared that any who view the heavens thoughtfully can not possibly be infideis.

Included among the pictures was one of a small observatory owned by Mr. Karr. He also had on display one of his telescopes.

Announcement was made that next Tuesday night members of Marion service clubs will meet at the Masonic Temple with boys of this year's graduating classes in Harding and St. Mary High schools as guests. This meeting is held annually as part of the club's vocational guidance program.

"I Promise Full Value for Each Tax Dollar Spent"

The tax money of every single taxpayer in Marion County goes into the county treasurer office. This money in turn should find its way out to serve you wherever your location may be. I will have no preferred group in any geographical location. My work as county commissioner which directly effects every citizen will be 100% for entire community. Serving in this office I will have no other business connections or receive pay from any other souce. I will serve full time with regular daily office hours.

FRANK BROS.

Former Marionite Wins Fame with Camera

"One of the foremost fashion photographers in the world" is the title bestowed upon John Rawlings, former Marion resident, by Joanna Gordon-Forbes in an article published in a recent issue of "Art and Industry," London art magazine. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rawlings of Van Wert, formerly of Marion, and a graduate of Harding High school in 1930. He is now in London where he is with Vogue magazine.

The author praises the work of Rawlings and another London photographer, Norman Parkinson, and ranks them with Horst, Moral, Dahl-Wolfe, Anton Bruehl and other outstanding American and Continental photographers.

Worked Abroad 3 Years

Parkinson is a native Englishman and takes pictures for Harpers Magazine. Rawlings worked for the Conde-Nast magazine "Vogue," for six months in New York then was transferred to London to make pictures for the English edition of the magazine. During the less than three years he has been abroad, Rawlings' pictures have made millions of women anxious to have the garments shown by his models and has made for himself a reputation which can scarcely be equalled in commercial photography, the author writes.

Miss Gordon-Forbes states that "John Rawlings is not, strictly speaking, an English photographer, for he is an American. But all of his best work has been done in England." She refers to him as more consciously the fashion photographer or the photographer of fashionable women than Parkinson. There is a much studied art about any of his photographs—he is at his best with highly sophisticated, fashionable young women and decorative backgrounds, she points out.

Attended Ohio Wesleyan

Rawlings attended Ohio Wesleyan university for a year and then went to New York where he worked in several stores including Sak's Fifth Avenue. Four years ago he was with Hamacher & Schlemmer, an interior decorating establishment. There he spent all the time he could in show window and store arrangement. About this time the candid camera hobby was well begun and Rawlings went about New York snapping pictures and seeking the unusual things. An artist friend, Joe Platt, who did the sets for "Gone with the Wind," recommended him to Conde-Nast when the publishers were looking for a photographer for "Vogue," and his hobby became his job. Within six months he was sent to England to take charge of photography for the London magazine.

Rawlings was home to visit his parents two years ago. He expected to return again, both last winter and at Easter time, but photographs and war combined to prevent. Now it's to be in the fall.

GALION TEACHERS HEAR UNIVERSITY INSTRUCTOR

Special to The Star

GALION, May 1 — Professor Wayne S. Huffman of Bowling Green university, was the speaker Tuesday when the Galion Classroom Teachers association held a spring dinner-party in the Masonic Temple. The title of his talk was "The Parlor and the Living Room."

There were 66 teachers and their wives present for the dinner which was served at 6:30 o'clock by the Past Matrons' Circle of the Naomi chapter, Order of Eastern Star. Mrs. A. J. Monroe was chairman of the committee that served.

Before the meal, the group sang the doxology, and the evening's program opened with group singing led by W. F. VonBrock, school music supervisor. Winifred Schamp was the piano accompanist. Juanita Curren was program chairman. She introduced the speaker and Mrs. W. W. Koppe who sang a group of numbers.

Remarks at the opening and close were given by R. W. Patterson, president of the teachers' association, and O. E. Hill, superintendent of schools, also spoke briefly at the close.

The social committee that planned the party was headed by Virginia Sydenstricker.

COUPLE RETURN HOME FROM WEDDING TRIP

Special to The Star

GALION, May 1—Mr. and Mrs. Willis P. Emmer who surprised their friends when they were married here Saturday afternoon at the parsonage of First Reformed church by Rev. R. R. Eilliker, returned last night from a wedding trip to Pittsburgh.

Before her marriage, Saturday, Mrs. Emmer was Dorothy Snyder, daughter of Mrs. Jesse Davis. The single ring service was read at 3:30 p. m., and immediately the couple left on their trip.

Since her graduation from Galion High school in 1937, the bride has been employed at Barr's drug store.

Mr. Emmer was graduated in 1932 from Crestline High school. He is employed by the Schill Manufacturing Co. of Crestline.

Within a few days the couple will leave for Illinois, where Mr. Emmer will continue to represent his company. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewalt Emmer of Crestline.

CHURCH AT BUCYRUS WILL BE ENLARGED

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, May 1—The rapid increase in membership in the Church of the Nazarene necessitates additional space, Rev. L. L. Zimmerman, announced today, when it was also announced that the present church will be enlarged and improved to meet the need.

The present church structure, located at Iron and East Warren streets, was built five years ago. The roof will be raised and a second story added to provide balcony space.

HELD TO GRAND JURY

BUCYRUS, May 1 — Noah Chandler, 50, Bucyrus, who was arrested last week in Columbus charged with forging prescriptions to obtain narcotics, was bound over to the federal grand jury under $2,000 bond at his hearing before Federal Commissioner Morton J. Kneipp in Toledo, Monday.

LOAN COMPANY WINS CHURCH COURT SUIT

State Tribunal Refuses To Review Wesley M. E. Case.

By refusing to review an appeal of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal church, the Ohio supreme court today upheld a Marion county common pleas court decision giving the Home Building, Savings & Loan Co. of Marion a prior lien on the Wesley Methodist church, according to an Associated Press report from Columbus.

The common pleas court decision, handed down by Judge A. V. Haumann of Fremont, who presided during hearings here, previously was upheld by the Third district court of appeals. The loan company holds a mortgage of approximately $30,000 for which amount judgment is sought. The Board of Home Missions set up a claim which it contended was prior to and better than the loan company's.

The board had loaned the church $16,575 but without approval of the common pleas court as provided by law. The common pleas court decision ruled the mortgage invalid because it lacked court sanction. John H. Clark of Marion, James A. While of Columbus and Charles F. Eggleston of Philadelphia, Pa., represented the church and Hayes Thompson and W. P. Moloney acted as counsel for the loan company.

To Whom It
May Concern:

April 16, 1940.

As a former resident of Marion, I find myself interested in what is going on in the "home town," particularly when old friends are mentioned. Upon learning that William Willis had offered himself as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Marion County, I felt an irresistible impulse to take the pen in hand.

Bill Willis and I served together in "D" Company of the 166th Infantry during the war under conditions of hardship and danger in which men really learn to know each other. Bill was a good soldier in the full sense of the term. His courage was proved on many occasions. He was thoroughly dependable. In tight places I know of no one I would rather have with me. I recall Bill's highly developed sense of duty. No responsibility was regarded lightly by him and all his assignments were performed thoroughly and conscientiously. He was tireless and cheerful under most trying circumstances. His cool head, excellent judgment and unusual ability to handle men marked him as a good leader. Thinking back upon those days, I recall nothing but pleasant memories of Bill. We were close friends and I missed him greatly after he was wounded at the Ourcq River while leading a scout detachment on a dangerous mission.

In more recent years it has not been surprising to me to hear fine reports of his service as Deputy Sheriff. I hope the Republican voters will select Bill Willis as their candidate and that the people of Marion County will elect him in November. I know he will be worthy of their trust.

Sincerely,

LELAND L. WHITNEY,

DEFENSE IS MAPPED FOR TRIAL OF YOUTHS

Lawyer Will Blame School Discipline In Slaying.

By The Associated Press

LANCASTER, O., May 1—An attempt to blame boys' industrial school officials indirectly for the May 31, 1939, slug-slaying of Axel Stromstead, 51-year-old institution tailor, was indicated today as defense counsel prepared for the first-degree murder trial of William S. Hart, 18, of Middletown, and Robert E. Lee, 18, of Norwood, Mass.

A defense attorney said he would tell the jury at the May 6 trial opening that "either too much discipline or the lack of it, and conduct of officers" at the school prompted the slaying, and that Hart was "dragged into a conspiracy * * * and made the goat."

No defense plan has been announced by counsel for Lee, who is charged with striking Stromstead on the head with a cloth-wrapped iron bar. Lima state hospital alienists adjudged Lee sane after a 30-day observation.

A. R. Harsh, veteran school superintendent who resigned last Dec. 1, was known as a strict disciplinarian, but his treatment of inmates never was openly questioned by the state welfare department.

Herbert R. Mooney, assistant welfare director, said a department representative would attend the trial as an observer, but that the state was taking no formal cognizance of a possible "expose" of school conditions. He said several disciplinary practices had been altered since Harold Hays became superintendent last December.

Hart and Lee, who are charged with murdering Stromstead in a frustrated escape attempt, will be the second pair of school inmates to face first-degree murder charges in three years.

Frank Sedar and Albert Brown, both of Cleveland, were convicted in 1937 of slaying Hobart Stewart, power plant engineer, in an escape and received life sentences.

Lee is under a Henry county robbery sentence, and Hart entered the school from Butler county for auto theft. Both are in the Fairfield county jail, from which Sheriff William Beihorn said Lee had attempted three times to escape and Hart had tried twice. One attempt involved a beauty contest winner, who was sentenced to the girls' industrial school at Delaware on charges of passing a saw to the youths.

NEW PENNSYLVANIA LAW LIKELY TO HAMPER CUPID

By The Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 1—A new state law which becomes effective May 17 may compel prospective brides and bridegrooms in Pennsylvania to wait as much as two weeks for marriage licenses after making application.

The law requires a physician's certificate attesting freedom from syphilis in a contagious stage. Although no definite waiting period is prescribed, the state health department said today a fortnight may be needed to complete blood tests.

CIVIC CLUB TO MEET

17,816 Pests Killed in Countywide Drive of F. F. A. Boys

Future Farmers of America chapters in Marion county are reaping a harvest of prizes awarded in a five-month pest hunt contest during which 280 boys representing seven chapters destroyed 17,816 pests.

Toll taken by the hunters ranged from 2,439 mice to eight foxes and included varying numbers of sparrows, rats, starlings, moles, pigeons, crows, woodchucks, hawks, owls, weasels and minks. Prizes were offered on a point-system, with the more elusive pests having heavier prices on their heads.

Prospect entries won the top prize in both the chapter and individual divisions. The group killed 7,512 pests for a score of 55,002 points. LaRue's chapter placed second with 1,565 pests and a point-total of 20,264.

Highest Individual Score

Clifford McWherter of Prospect turned in the highest individual score. He earned 15,405 points. Clair Oberdier of LaRue won second place with 13,431 points. In addition to prizes for each chapter and 15 individual awards, the three highest-scoring boys from each chapter also received recognition prizes.

The contest began last Nov. 8 and continued through the winter months. O. H. Neimeyer of Prospect, state game protector, helped with the supervision, assisted by agricultural instructors at the schools having F. F. A. chapters. Instructors helping are C. B. Casto, teacher at Green Camp and Agosta, Burdette Hunter of LaRue, A. J. Bishop of Morral, Milford E. Schmidt of Pleasant, R. E. Young of Prospect and Byron Good of Waldo.

While the contest was in progress Mr. Neimeyer arranged special exhibits of mounted animals and birds at the participating schools. This plan was followed to serve two major purposes. First, to stimulate interest in the hunt, and second, so that participants migh easily recognize the destructive type of owls and hawks which were classed as pests.

Merchandise Prizes Given

The vocational agriculture instructors handled the accounting of the hunt as it progressed. They turned over their score sheets to Mr. Neimeyer, who made arrangements for the awards on the basis of a final tabulation. Merchandise prizes were furnished by merchants throughout the county who dispense hunting and fishing licenses. An additional award was provided for the winning chapter by the Marion County Fish & Game Protective association.

Upon completion of the contest Mr. Neimeyer began a tour of the schools to award the prizes. He has held programs at: LaRue, Pleasant, Green Camp and Agosta and later will visit Waldo, Prospect and Morral. At each school he presents a program including a talk on wildlife and conservation work and pictures of wildlife taken in Marion county.

The total of 17,816 pests killed during the hunt, broken down into the various birds and animals, included 9,537 sparrows, 2,439 mice, 1,333 starlings, 1,981 rats, 1,217 pigeons, 784 crows, 101 hawks, 97 moles, 72 weasels, 20 minks, 15 woodchucks, 12 owls and eight foxes. Points were awarded on the basis of fox 500, mink 300, weasel 100, owl 200, hawks 100, woodchucks 50, pigeons, moles and rats 10, crows and starlings 5, mice 2 and sparrows 1.

Scores of Top 15

Total points scored by the first 15 individual winners follow: Clifford McWherter of Prospect, 15,405; Clair Oberdier of LaRue, 13,431; James Cusick of Pleasant, 8,986; Delbert Houk of Green Camp, 7,229; Richard Wolf of Prospect, 6,030; Paul Fox of Prospect, 5,511; Kenneth Davis of Prospect, 4,651; Ralph Lichtenberger of Pleasant, 4,487; Victor Wick of Waldo, 4,350; Carl Hughes of Prospect, 3,895; Wayne Rawlings of Waldo, 2,345; Charles Kline of Green Camp, 1,700; Joseph Miller of LaRue, 1,290; Richard Grace of Pleasant, 1,231, and Kenneth Jerew of Green Camp, 884.

The winning Prospect F. F. A. chapter amassed its 55,002 points by destroying this list of pests: 3,656 sparrows, 1,273 mice, 790 starlings, 767 rats, 422 pigeons, 44 crows, 36 hawks, 28 weasels, six mink, five woodchucks, two owls and two foxes. Total points scored by the other chapters were: LaRue, 20,264; Pleasant, 19,640; Waldo, 14,842; Green Camp, 12,173; Morral, 3,332

OHIO PUBLISHER BUYS FREE PRESS IN DETROIT

John S. Knight Enters Michigan Field.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, May 1 — Sale of the Detroit Free Press to John S. Knight, publisher of the Akron, O., Beacon-Journal and the Miami, Fla., Herald, was announced in today's editions of the newspaper.

No mention of the sale price was made, but the announcement stated that the purchase carries with it all outstanding stock in the corporation.

The Free Press, a morning paper, is 109 years old, the oldest daily in Michigan. E. D. Stair has been publisher and owner of the controlling interest since 1906.

Stair, who is 81 years old, said that because of his age he wished to be relieved of the responsibility entailed in the publication of a metropolitan newspaper. He will remain, however, as chairman of the board of the Detroit Free Press, Inc., while Knight assumes the presidency.

Knight said in a statement that the Free Press would be politically independent in its editorial policy.

GERMAN BOMBER CRASH KILLS THREE IN ENGLAND

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 1—The crash of a German bomber shot down by anti-aircraft guns and the explosion of its deadly load of mines and bombs at the east coast resort town of Clacton-On-Sea today killed the Nazi crew of five and caused England's first civilian air raid — three dead and more than 100 injured.

Air raid workers dug charred bodies from the debris resulting from the crash, which resembled a giant skyrocket exploding a box of fireworks. The explosion destroyed three houses, damaged 50 others and left a huge crater in the street, less than 50 miles from London.

The crash occurred shortly after three enemy planes had been sighted flying at a low altitude over the Humber river estuary—a favored objective of German mine-laying aircraft.

Doping Out a War

PREMIER Mussolini who usually is credited with the longest head in the European Dictators union is supposed to be doping out the war continental style When he makes up his mind he will order Italy to fight on that side It will be the top dog side

If he concludes Germany is going to win it will be a crushing blow to all who would prefer that Germany lose But lest the blow fall there are two things to remember about Premier Mussolini who apparently is well on his way to concluding the Allies are the underdogs in the war

One is that Premier Mussolini can't be called an objective dopester he has prejudices The other is that the continental style of doping out things isn't necessarily the last word Europeans lack the imagination that American dopesters consider their chief asset

In the United States for instance dopesters are notoriously given to playing hunches One of the standard American hunches furthermore concerns the general all around desirability of the underdog as a good bet Perhaps that's because the underdog is a copyrighted American phenomenon

The underdog is prone to look bad when things start and to look good when they finish He is no Fancy Dan He is more likely to hear jeers than cheers But something about him clicks when the pressure is on He possesses something that makes him rise to the occasion

The psychologists would say his morale is good sportsmen would say he has a fighting heart In any event Premier Mussolini will make a serious mistake if he doesn't take into consideration the probabilities of the underdog becoming the top dog as the fighting continues—or is that a hunch only an American would play?

Nevertheless from the viewpoint of many Americans it is more important that the British are criticizing their own conduct of the war than that the Germans are going like a house afire—more important as a tipoff on underdog psychology that is

Casualties of Turmoil

CONVERSION of British luxury liners to uses for which they never were intended is a reminder of something momentous that is going to happen to naval power as the result of the war

Denials do not conceal the fact that the British navy is suffering far more at the hands of German submarines mines and airplanes than it is convenient to admit Somewhere between German boasts and British denials is the truth—and it is not comforting to Britannia

One of the casualties of turmoil seems likely to be British naval supremacy—military as well as commercial The United States whose naval strength has been increasing by leaps and bounds under the prodding of a seagoing chief executive may become the world's greatest seapower Japan perhaps will end up in second place

What may happen to the relative positions of mercantile marines depends of course on the duration of the war Britain's superiority—almost two to one over the United States when the war started—can stand a lot of reducing before anything happens to its leadership But undoubtedly one of the byproducts of a world in turmoil is going to be a momentous shift in distribution of sea power Perhaps the recent transfer of the Queen Elizabeth from Britain to the United States is an omen as well as a precaution

Overflowing Gratitude

IN AN attitude of pleased discovery The New York Times trumpeted twice in its Sunday edition that something besides animal life goes on west of the Alleghenies

Cornelia Otis Skinner writing in the newspaper's magazine section about her amusing and sometimes helpful experiences outside New York City gave her indorsement to the sticks Every actor should see them once On its editorial page the newspaper itself acknowledged It is good for our sense of proportion to revise any notions we may have that American culture begins and ends in this city and doesn't signify if this city doesn't put an O K on it This simply isn't true The back country the provinces the sticks the woods the tank towns are coming along Main street has ideas worth listening to including some that have not occurred to Broadway

Some day New Yorkers are going to go too far with the illusion that the United States is bounded by the Hudson river on the west. They'll make the stick folk so mad with their complacency the yahoos will quit feeding them clothing them replenishing their population furnishing them with ideas and supplying their spending money Yes sir by gum

News Behind the News

Washington Told That Crisis in Norway Will Come in Mid Summer, Not Now

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 1—An official whisper from the British has quieted the first alarm within the administration over Allied reverses in Norway A military attache at the British embassy has passed word around that Mr Churchill is planning to put a couple hundred thousand troops into action there by mid-summer Hitler will no doubt do likewise A long and arduous struggle lasting many months is anticipated Reverses or successes in current battles therefore cannot be decisive

Paul Mallon

While the British may not be the best authorities on how long the struggle will last realization is growing on high here that even the complete fall of Norway now to the Germans would not mean the end of the war Apprehensive pressure for American further steps is thus easing

Pro Con

The Tinkham charge that the administration has a plan for embarkation of troops at New York has raised one of those issues in which political debaters can draw opposite conclusions from the same set of facts

The facts are Evidence at an interstate commerce commission hearing has shown that a railroad concentration plan for embarkation exists War department will not comment officially but unofficially it is said this is only one of the numerous secret war plans which the government must necessarily keep ready for eventualities they do not expect The government has for instance a plan for invasion of Mexico

The troop embarkation plan was worked out in 1924 and kept up to date without major change

Popularity

The Democratic convention will not be unanimous for Mr Roosevelt as first choice This probably unimportant conclusion became evident when three elected Garner delegates in Wisconsin met and passed the word along here they would vote for their designated nominee under any circumstances As all three are Irishmen there seems to be no reason for doubt

Nearly everything else however is being taken by the Roosevelt forces The leftwing Roosevelt managers have made as many mistakes as possible The wrong state leaders have been chosen Even conflicting leaders with self opposing states have been allowed to compete against one another by the southpaw non-professionals

But with all their genius for error they apparently could not make enough mistakes to offset the Roosevelt popularity So while the delegates will assemble in Chicago the convention will be held in Mr Roosevelt's hat

Foreign Securities Bill

Congress has been sniffing suspiciously at the joint resolution expanding government power to handle foreign securities but has not been able to find much wrong with it The legislation gives the President specific power to declare a national emergency then designate any agency to investigate regulate or prohibit any foreign properties Presumably he could extract the gold tooth of an alien if so minded

Republican legislators suspected this might include some other extra legal authority beyond what appeared on the surface But they could not find evidence upon which to base a successful contest One thing all could see in the bill is the complete extent to which business may be managed from Washington the next time the United States is involved in a war

Gleanings

The logical candidate State Secretary Hull has written several private letters to Democratic state chairmen (including Kansas) saying he has no aspirations for the presidency This stand may not mean anything but a Republican candidate Senator Vandenberg has recently discovered too many primary voters in Wisconsin and Nebraska believed him when he said he was not seeking the nomination Senate Democratic Leader Barkley has told his associates privately to make their personal arrangements for adjournment of congress around June 15 C O Hardy Brookings Institution specialist on banking was the author of most of the 2 000 and more questions which the Wagner committee is asking government departments in its investigation of fiscal policies

Newsmen flipped coins to decide who would call Virginia's grand old Senator Glass to ask him about gossip concerning his ensnarement by cupid The loser hesitatingly telephoned twice explained his embarrassment about asking the senator such a personal question but was persuaded to submit it finally when Glass urged him to go ahead When the question was put Glass said That IS a personal question and hung up

Sees War in Norway

Reporter Describes Fighting at Namsos as Allies Dig in (U Nor an L Igg Associated Press reporter who was arrested by British troops near the fortport Norwegian port of Narvik when he penetrated their lines around that city and later was released has sent the following description of destruction of Namsos Norway by German bombers and of allied measures taken to start against further Nazi air attacks)

* * *

FORMOFOSS Norway (about 20 miles east of Namsos) April 30—German air raids on the allied troops at Namsos which have turned parts of that Norwegian coastal town into wreckage took a sharp decline Monday when British anti-aircraft guns opened up full blast and drove a surprised German bomber high into the upper air

After that blast the air alarms which have kept the entire Namsos area anxious since the first days of Germany's invasion of Norway lessened by 80 per cent

Namsos which has steep rising cliffs on the north side a fjord in the center and more hills on the south now is literally alive with British and French anti aircraft batteries Each is manned by crack shots especially chosen to bolster the morale of the Norwegians who have clung to their homes in this embattled town

Germans Given Surprise

German fliers who according to Norwegian airmen formerly flew over the entire sector from Namsos to the Swedish border about 75 miles to the east as if it were their own private airfield realized for the first time Monday that they would meet resistance

I walked through Namsos yesterday and found the town especially the lower end near the harbor virtually wrecked Every house in the lower part of the town is razed with huge holes where German bombs hit

One bomb crater in the center square of the lower section measured 30 feet across

Other damage apparently was caused by incendiary bombs for ruins of the buildings were charred and the bricks were well smoked

Despite previous reports that anti aircraft had been set up in the Namsos area since the first days of the German invasion a British officer let the cat out of the bag as I talked with him

Asked if he had come close to hitting an enemy aircraft he replied

Hell man we've only been set up five hours—haven't even warmed up the guns yet

Gun Set Up Monday

Further inquiry elicited the information that all British batteries and the French rapid fire guns were erected only Monday

I was told that the only French troops in Norway up to this time are the famed Alpine Chasseurs or Blue Devils equally at home on skis or on foot

They belong to the same regiments which helped train the first American divisions in France during the World war

Rene Langres a World war veteran said reports that the French Foreign Legion was in Norway were ridiculous

The prestige of France would not allow such a thing he said

The first French units must be of French nativity That's the way my country operates

British officers told the same story

There are a few Canadians here said one but they are mostly in the air force All land troops you see here are from the British Isles mostly north countrymen

The crying need in this sector at present is telephone and telegraph communications

A single telephone must be divided among the military of three nations journalists of many more and the citizenry—with the last group taking a bad beating

The only telegraph wire out is manned by a telegrapher who is opposed to working overtime

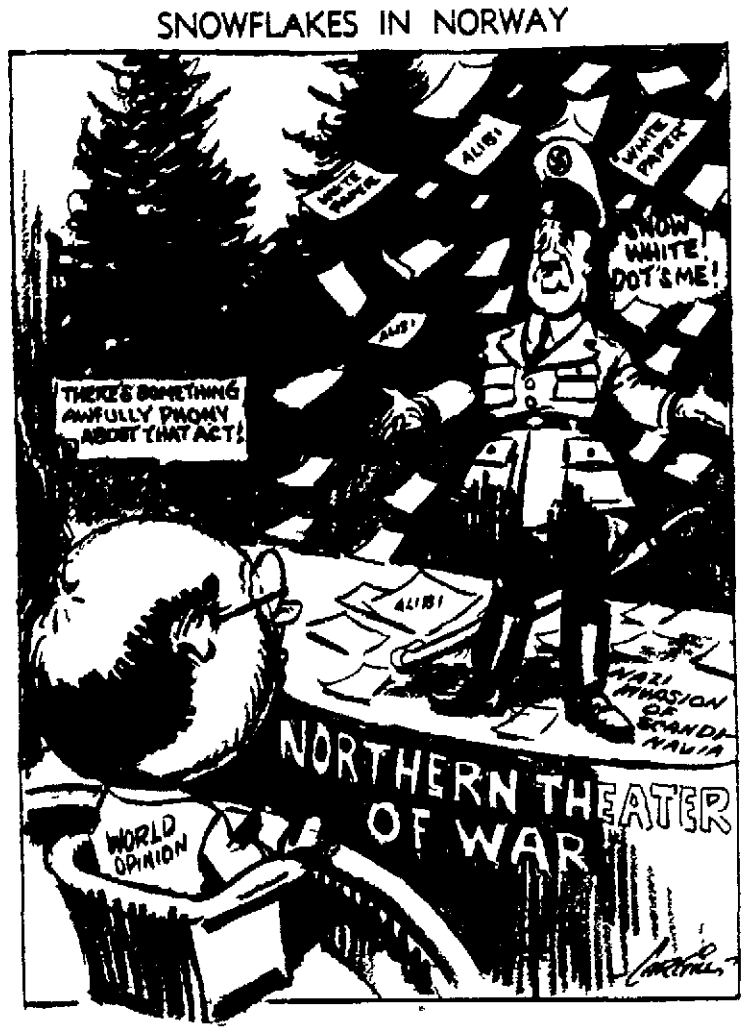
SNOWFLAKES IN NORWAY



On The Record

Blue Danube, Muddy Now, One of Rich Prizes at Stake in War.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

WHILE war rages on the North Sea and in Norway another war is waging on the river best known through the world's most popular waltz The Blue Danube is not blue this spring but brown The peasant folk who live along it are fighting their own war with the river itself The hardest winter in years was followed by the break up of the ice and the melting of snows under which the river burst its banks and flooded the fields of Hungary Rumania Bulgaria and Yugoslavia

Dorothy Thompson

The waters rose while the men of these countries were mobilized Women and children were left to fight the floods Such winter wheat as was not frozen was drowned The peasants will do without their good wheat this year the women and children will eat cold corn meal mush with their soured milk for the wheat is needed for the national armies—soldiers demand bread Better that the peasants should eat cornmeal than their countries should be invaded

Perhaps the corn will produce a fine crop this season In any case the granary will be much smaller than usual after the next harvest and who knows whether this too will play a role in the strategy of the war making this year more favorable for Germany than next

The Danube is a river of destiny Once it rose in Austria almost at the Swiss border Now its source is German It flows through Germany Hungary Yugoslavia then forms the border between Rumania and Bulgaria until it empties into the Black Sea in Rumania again

The nation that controls this river from its source to its outlet would become the greatest power in Europe and might become the greatest power in the world

Greater Germany is already a nation of 106 000 000 people South and east along this river are four more nations which incorporated into the Reich or vassal to it would add another 45 000 000 people to Germany—people who are accustomed to soldiery who are 80 per cent peasant and whose birthrate and surplus of births over deaths is the highest in Europe

The German Reich with the most efficient industrial plants in the world outside of the United States and with a thickly settled population knows these countries better than any other power Her agronomists and geologists and industrial experts have surveyed the terrain in all its details How much could these wide and fertile plains yield were they worked by modern scientific methods they have asked They stretch out for miles the soil plowed by oxen and harrowed by men and women whose implements are spades

These peasants are patient hard working submissive people Mush and milk cucumbers and cabbage are their fare Their two room houses are bright with whitewash tinted blue or yellow sometimes painted with bright designs Their national independence is a new thing

Always they have worked hard and produced hardy offspring Their brawn helped open the mines and build the railroads and industries of the United States, where no one knew them as Yugoslavs Rumanians or Bulgarians but massed them under the epithet of Hunkies

But they have more than wide fields and submissive brawn A few days ago we drove through the forests of Ploesti and Moreni only 15 miles or so from the Rumanian capital of Bucharest where the trees are dwarfed by forests of oil derricks as thick as the trees themselves and stretching as far as the eye can see—the richest oil fields in Europe outside of Russia and not yet exploited as the Germans to the extent that they could be

On the train between the Yugoslav and Bulgarian frontier we passed great wastes of treeless mountains a desert of rock but in the waste on the Yugoslav side are copper mines richer than those of the famous Rio Tinto in Spain Under the soil held by the Hunkies of the Danube countries are gold and silver and iron—all the things the Reich wants and needs an empire lying at the door of the opening into the Black Sea the gateway to Asia

Add these countries as political and military protectorates to the Reich under a monopolistic economic system and the Reich would have a population larger than that of the United States with resources sufficient to feed her people and her industries

Nor would there be any decadent ideas of freedom and democracy—outworn and sentimental shibboleths There is no equality between the strong and the weak the conqueror and the conquered The organization would be strictly hierarchical a

Mr Joe Turp Writes From Brooklyn

DEAR SIR Last night my wife Ethel sez I wish you would put down that paper cause I want to talk I sez all right sweetness I will until I finish this piece about the Dodgers I sez it looks like we are going to have a ball club this year I sez it looks like we will win that old peanut and Ethel sez O poohthat is what you said last year

I sez well baby we had a lot of bad breaks last year but we did not do so bad I sez that we have got a couple of new guys that look like lulus to me and Ethel sez well you sez the same thing last year Joe but you were wrong you finished reading that piece yet I want to talk to you I sez well I guess I might as well call I finished What do you want to talk about

Ethel sez why I just want to talk I sez that's fine but what about? She sez why anything I sez Ethel do you mean you do not have anything special to talk to me about? She sez no Joe Does somebody have to have something special to talk about when somebody wants to talk to their husband?

I SES well Ethel we could not just sit here and talk unless we had something to talk about could we? She sez why not Joe? Don't we just talk? I sez yes but generally we have some thing to talk about She sez well you think of something for us to talk about because I want to talk to you I like to talk to you Joe Thats nice of you Ethel I sez would you like to talk about the Dodgers?

Ethel sez no I don't feel like talking about them tonight Joe You always get too excited when you talk about the Dodgers and besides you are always wrong I sez maybe we could talk about the weather and she sez why that would be silly You are only supposed to talk about the weather with somebody you meet on the street when you can't think of anything else to talk about Besides I hate the weather I wish it would hurry up and be summer so we could go in swimming

I sez I wish so too Ethel I sez I guess this has been the toughest winter we ever had in Brooklyn and she sez O no Joe My pop sez he remembers some winters in the old days were much tougher My pop sez he remembers a winter in Brooklyn when the East river was all over and they could walk across to New York on the ice He had an argument with my pop about it just the other night.

I sez what kind of an argument Ethel? She sez well it was quite a big argument My mom sez my pops must be mistaken in thinking he remembers such a thing My moms sez she knows about it happening but it was long before my pops time My mom sez she and my pops were boys and girls together and she remembers everything that happened in Brooklyn in better than he does and she does not remember the river freezing over It made pops awful mad when she sez that Joe

I SES thats a funny thing to get in an argument about and Ethel sez yes and thats another reason why I don't want to talk to you about the weather You just sez you guess this is the toughest winter we ever had in Brooklyn and suppose I had remembered one toughest winter my pops did? Then we would have been in an argument Joe

I sez well lets pass up the weather then I sez its not a very interesting subject to talk about anyway because it only reminds me of the time I suffered leaving this warm house in the morning to go out in the cold to work

She sez well Joe it could have been worse My pops sez he remembers when it was so cold in Brooklyn that he would have his hanging to his ears by the time he got to his job

I sez did your moms hear him say that? She sez certainly she did I sez what did she say? Ethel sez why she just sez O pooh pooh is what my moms sez to most things that my pops sez especially when he gets to remembering something I guess I got in the habit of saying O pooh from my moms Joe Well I am terribly tired and now I think I will go to bed and get a good nights rest

I SES wait a minute Ethel I sez I thought you sez you wanted to talk to me? She sez no I did talk to you Didn't we just have a talk? I sez well yes I guess we did baby sez well then I am going to bed You can sit up and keep on reading about the Dodgers if you like Joe I will talk to you about them some other night

I sez thanks Ethel and she sez Joe it was lovely to sit at home and have a nice talk I sez I don't know of anything lovelier especially when it is such an interesting talk She sez yes and when we started you did not think we had anything to talk about Good night Joe I sez good night baby

Yours truly

Spencer Ends Conference and Madge Retires for Night

THAT MY father's words were a subtle dismissal of us for the rest of the evening I knew well from long experience of his little ways. That Lillian saw it also, I conjectured from the swiftness with which she rose from her seat.

"Dear Chief," she said sweetly, "Am I right in thinking that you no longer need Madge and me tonight?"

"I always need both of you," my father said, smiling. "But I can get along without you better this evening than on most occasions. And you ought to get a good sleep tonight in order to face tomorrow's ordeal, for I know that rehearsal will be just that for you and Margaret as well as Mary."

"Not so much for me," Lillian said, "although, of course, I'm tremendously concerned in the outcome of the experiment. But Madge's nerves and Mury's must be doing tap dances all over the place. Come along, Madge, and let me tuck you into bed after we've made the rounds and seen that everybody is staying put."

A Job for Lil

She grasped my hand and pulled me to my feet. But I put my other hand in my father's quickly outstretched one, and lifted my face for his kiss.

"Good-night, my darling," he said, "and get to sleep quickly."

"Just so you won't forget me," Dicky said mischievously, clipping me round the waist as my father released me, and kissing me heartily. "Don't wait too long before hitting the hay, Lil. You're seconding this 'champeen' in the fight-to-the-finish bout between 'Kid' Veritzen and 'Kid' Graham, aren't you?"

"Surest thing you know," Lillian retorted, "and you needn't worry that massive brain of yours any longer. I'll ride herd on her. She'll be in good condition to put the kibosh on old Phil tomorrow. I pledge you my word on that."

She sent a reassuring laugh over her shoulder, and I echoed it, straining for the light intonation in her voice, but failing dismally, as I knew by the grip Lillian gave my arm when the door had closed behind us.

And So to Bed

"Snap out of it!" she advised me.

"You'll never be on your toes in the morning if you don't relax tonight. Come on to my room and I'll put you to bed. Then I'll make the rounds, and see that everybody is staying put while Dicky and your father deal with those men of Leslie's. I want to wait up for Harry anyway, so it will be no hours taken off my young life."

She was literally propelling me along the hall as she spoke, and when we reached her room, which I was sharing with her, because we had put Edith Fairfax to bed in mine, she stood over me until I had undressed and crawled into bed.

"I'll take counsel with Katrina and see what I can safely drop into a cup of hot milk for you," she said as she turned toward the door. "If you're asleep when I come back, you won't have to take the posset. But no faking, remember! I shall know, and if you're pretending sleep, I'll hold your nose while I put the dose down you."

Case of Nerves

I laughed at her nonsense as she went out of the door, but I found that I could not obey her command to relax, or gratify her hope that I would get to sleep. I was wide awake when she finally came back, and my nerves were more taut than ever.

"Well! how about it?" she greeted me as she came in the door, found the night lamp alight, and saw that my eyes were open. "Do I hold your nose, as I threatened, or will you take this peaceably?"

"This" was a large cup from which the steam of hot milk arose. I wondered idly if concealed within it was the sedative which Lillian had threatened to get from Katharine for me.

"I'll take it gladly," I said, but a laughing and familiar voice sounded behind Lillian.

"Hold everything!" Katharine said as she came into the room, and taking the cup from Lillian's hand, set it on the table.

BIRTHDAY DINNER GIVEN FOR PROSPECT WOMAN

The seventy-fifth birthday anniversary of Mrs. C. W. Kepler was observed with a dinner Sunday at her home in Prospect. Present were Mrs. Jack O'Riley and daughter, Betty and son, Dick of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Dana Daniels, George Dutton, Mrs. Roy Dellinger, Mrs. Ester Ferrin and children, Tommy and Elnora of Marion, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Long and daughters Mary Ann and Evelyn, Mrs. C. A. Biggerstaff of Mt. Gilead, Charles Dutt, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Seebach, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Timson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kepler and son Bob, Billy Kepler and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Kepler of Prospect. The celebrant received a number of remembrances.

Quiz on Roses To Feature Meeting of Garden Club

A 50-QUESTION quiz on roses will be conducted at a meeting of the Marion Garden club Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert E. White on Harding Highway W. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Howard Geer, Mrs. Oliver Hamilton, Mrs. Karl Holly, Mrs. C. A. Hudson, Mrs. E. G. Siefert and Mrs. J. Malcolm Strelitz.

In addition to the quiz each member is asked to provide a miniature arrangement which will be judged for prize awarding. Specifications call for an arrangement not to exceed three inches over all. An award also will be given in the quiz. The meeting, scheduled for 2:30 o'clock, will be preceded by a board meeting at 2 o'clock.

Personal Mention

Miss Ava Jane Biggerstaff of Columbus spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Biggerstaff of Prospect.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Beaver of Detroit spent from Saturday until Tuesday with Mrs. Beaver's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woodcock of Pearl street. Sunday they motored to Dayton.

O. E. S. INSPECTION HELD AT MEETING IN PROSPECT

Miss Marie Jacoby of Ashley, deputy grand matron of District No. 11, conducted inspection of the work of Prospect Chapter No. 89, Order of the Eastern Star Friday night. The chapter received a grade of excellent. Music for the work was furnished by Mrs. Lucille Stone, vocal soloist. Guests were present from Marion, LaRue, Ashley, Delaware, Marysville, Richwood and Forest, and included Marie McElree of Forest, deputy of District No. 26, and Fred L. Carhart of Marion, a past grand patron.

MARION AND BUCYRUS COUPLE EXCHANGE VOWS

Announcement is being made today of the marriage of Miss Donna Soulier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Soulier of 390 East Farming street, and John Yingst, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Yingst of Bucyrus, which took place Dec. 23, last year at Grayson, Ky. The ceremony was read by Rev. L. L. Hinton, pastor of the Church of Christ, in the church. For the present the couple will live with the bridegroom's parents in Bucyrus.

CORRECTION

A book review given at the Advance club patroness party Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. F. Smyth of 326 Franklin street, was given by Mrs. Everett B. Grigsby, a guest, instead of Mrs. L. E. Michel as it was reported last night in The Star.

...cretly entered Holland and ...travelled to Kaiser Wilhelm's ...haven

According to legend surrounding the adventure which the participants were reluctant to discuss in later years, the party actually entered Wilhelm's home but fled when surprised by Dutch guards

Complaints were made with the state department and Lea and his comrades were placed under military arrest Disposition of the case never was revealed, but all were released

Church said his group was not over optimistic about its chances of achieving its end but it thought the possibility was worth encouraging

I believe in my heart he continued that Mr Hitler should be held as the common enemy of mankind and brought to justice accordingly

Church is a retired vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad and an officer of the French Legion of Honor

BIGELOW ASKS OK OF PENSION FORMS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O May 1—Rev Herbert S Bigelow of Cincinnati asked the secretary of state today to approve the form of a petition for a constitutional amendment intended to guarantee a monthly income of $50 to single persons and $80 to married couples 60 years of age or older

If the secretary approves the form Mr Bigelow must obtain more than 240 000 signatures to place the issue on the November ballot

The guaranteed income plan is similar to that sponsored by him and rejected by the voters in last November's election

The proposed method of financing the so-called old age pensions would be changed, however The defeated proposal contemplated a two per cent tax on all land worth $20 000 or more an acre and was interpreted by legal experts to include building improvements The new plan exempts improvements

METHODISTS WANT ENVOY TO VATICAN RECALLED

Committee Also Urges U S To Avoid War

By The Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N J., May 1 Committee reports urging President Roosevelt to recall his personal peace envoy to the Vatican and asking the Methodist church to go on record requesting the United States to remain out of the European war were before 716 delegates to the general conference of the Methodist church today

The interdenominational relations committee of the Methodist church reported to the general conference yesterday that

His (Myron C Taylor's) appointment has created a spirit of uneasiness and resentment in the minds of a great number of people and instead of promoting peace has engendered discord and strife, which seems calamitous at this time when there is imperative need for harmonious united action on the part of all those who fear God and love righteousness

CITY WITHOUT MILK AS DRIVERS STRIKE

CHICAGO May 1—Several hundred thousand Chicago and suburban residents went without milk and cream for breakfast this morning

A strike voted by the milk wagon drivers union halted virtually all home deliveries in the metropolitan area

Drivers stopped work because of a dispute over a new wage contract with the Associated Milk Dealers of Chicago Their old contract expired at midnight

Dealers sought a contract calling for a wage scale of $30 per week plus commissions The union held out for the old scale of $48 plus commissions

Residents in the metropolitan area consumed more than 1 500 000 quarts of milk daily An estimated 48 per cent is home delivered Approximately 4 000 drivers were affected by the dispute

Frank Gillespie president of the dairy employes union announced that the approximately 2 000 members of his union would join the strike Both the inside workers and the drivers unions are A F L affiliates

David Rusbind drivers union attorney said the union was prepared to service hospitals or phanages and similar institutions during the strike

Milk dealers contended an immediate pay slash was required by the increased cost of distribution by wagon

ROOSEVELT, DEWEY LEAD IN DELEGATES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON May 1—With President Roosevelt and Thomas E Dewey ahead in instructed delegates for the Democratic and Republican presidential nominations the biggest delegate picking month of the pre convention period opened today

Republicans who have chosen 214 of their 1 000 delegates will select 477 in 26 states during May and virtually complete their list

Democrats have chosen 374 of their 1 094 delegates They will pick at least 392 more in 18 states in May but leave a sizable number for selection in June

Leading with 305 pledged and semi-pledged delegates it appeared likely today that President Roosevelt would go into the Democratic convention with a comfortable majority either for himself or for a candidate of his choice

Iowa Democratic leaders appear to have decided to give their 22 convention votes to the Chief Executive

RELIEF

worked out because officials are aware of the possibility of going too far in restricting relief clients

There are of course some abuses—as there are everywhere—but in some cases if the person is deprived of the use of his automobile he is also deprived of the opportunity to go out and earn money for his rent and other necessities which we can not give Mr Burns said

Avoid Too Rigid Rules

Too rigid restrictions may thus keep on relief some people who would otherwise be able to find private work and support themselves entirely he added

Other changes effective today are

1 Payment of rent or shelter is stopped except in emergency cases

2 No employable case may be accepted for relief until the case has applied for WPA work

3 In the rural areas, all employable cases which involve males over 18 years of age will be required to work out relief orders under the direction of the township trustees Prior to this time there was no rural work relief

4 All rural relief applications must be first investigated by the township trustees who report to the relief director for approval This will assure a more uniform procedure than in the past

5 Township trustees must issue requisitions in the place of relief orders This is in accordance with a new state ruling and will also secure greater uniformity This also applied to medical aid in rural areas

The commissioners in adopting the plan in the townships were compelled to do so under the state rulings and are working harmoniously with the trustees in carrying on the rural work, Mr Burns said

Relief Staff Reduced

Another change reported today by Mr Burns is a reduction in the city department's investigating staff There are now only two investigators, compared with five a while back during a recertification program As a result of the investigation the work of checking applications of clients will be slowed up considerably

The approximate relief loads announced by Mr Burns are

City—235 family cases including 108 employable and 168 non-family persons, including 63 employable

County—90 families and 13 non family persons about 25 per cent of each being classed as employables

New Food Schedule

The new food allowance schedule together with hours of work required follows

The amounts are for 15 day periods. The schedule is effective both for rural and city areas/

One person, $2 85, seven hours of work

Two persons $4 35 10½ hours.
Three persons $5 25, 13 hours
Four persons, $6 60, 16½ hours
Five persons, $7.50, 18½ hours.
Six persons, $8 40, 21 hours.
Seven persons, $9, 22½ hours.
Eight persons, $9 75, 24½ hours.
Nine persons, $10.50, 26 hours

The list goes as high as a family of 12 which receives $12.50 and for which 30½ hours of work are required.

German Prestige Rises with Army Gains in Norway

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

There is some dispute whether the Germans actually have established full communication between Oslo and their garrison in the strategic rail head of Trondheim but there can be no doubt that the Nazis have won a very considerable victory

Immediate concern of the allies and their supporters has turned to the effect of the blow to allied prestige and the corresponding rise in Nazi stock rather than to the military results

The war will be neither won nor lost in Norway but this is a bad time for a major military set back since it might stampede some nervous neutrals into hasty military commitments.

Quick recognition of this danger came in Britain in sudden order diverting all her mercantile traffic from the Mediterranean—a blunt indication that she was suspicious of Italy's intentions

So far as one can see from this distance the probabilities are that this assault move was inspired by precaution rather than any definite sign that Signor Mussolini was preparing to join Hitler This maneuver also would serve as a warning to Rome to act right and not be stampeded

The British doubts of Il Duce's position have been aroused by the steady stream of anti Allied pro-German propaganda which has been coming out of Italy recently However Rome dispatches today report that there is no sign of any rush to the German side

...es Declares Next President Faces ...ce Fight with Army of Spenders

...r Vice President Cites Harding's System as Best Way To Balance Budget.

The Associated Press

...INGTON, May 1—Charles ... said last night that the ...sident of the United ...ld have to fight "the ... army of government spenders, wasters and patronage-dispensing politicians" in history to save the nation from bankruptcy and ruin.

The Chicago banker, who was the government's first budget director and served as vice president in the Coolidge administration, outlined a comprehensive plan of balancing the federal budget in an address prepared for delivery at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Cites Harding Plan

Speaking with some of the directness that won him the nickname of "Hell 'n Maria" in World war days, Dawes charged that President Roosevelt's action in abolishing the federal coordinating service in 1933 was one of the chief causes "of the present condition of chaos in the business system of our government."

His plan to balance the budget, he said, was the same which President Harding had put into effect in 1921. At that time, when the budget system was also instituted, he continued, Harding created and operated a system of executive control and co-ordination over governmental departments.

Dawes said that "under this new system and presidential leadership during the whole fiscal year of 1922," government expenditures, exclusive of debt reduction, were reduced from $5,115,927,659 in the fiscal year of 1921 to $3,372,607,699 in the fiscal year of 1922.

Procedure Outlined

Dawes said that, in "the present unparalleled confusion of governmental business affairs," the next president might adopt the following procedure which he said was carried out in 1921:

1. By executive order, the president must enable the director of the budget to create an organization which will empower him to assemble for the president impartial information necessary for the chief executive to make the decisions incident to business policy.

2. The president must make it a condition, in appointing cabinet members or heads of independent spending agencies, that the appointees pledge to support him in reducing expenditures and balancing the budget. Disloyalty to the president in his effort to balance the budget would mean dismissal.

3. In the first month of his term of office the president must call the business organizations of the government to a public meeting. There bureau chiefs would be ordered to report within 30 days what part each could save of the unspent remainder of his current annual appropriation.

4. To help him during his first year, the president must call in a large number of "able business executives" to advise him "where the ax could be properly and effectively wielded on waste and extravagance."

WHITE WANTS DEBATE WITH GOV. BRICKER

Candidate Would Argue Theories of Economy.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 1—George White of Marietta, former Democratic governor and candidate for renomination, would like to argue "theories of economy" with Gov. Bricker, Republican.

White told a party rally here last night that he believed in economy but not "at the sacrifice of any group of citizens who were hungry as they were in Cleveland." He said he was willing to debate the matter with the governor.

Rep. Arthur Anderson, Democrat of Michigan, speaking at Canton, also criticized the Republican state administration for its attitude in the recent Cleveland relief crisis.

Anderson said the Cleveland situation was "a national scandal and that single issue will elect a Democratic governor of Ohio."

Appearing on the same program with Anderson, William J. Kennedy, another of the seven Democratic candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, insisted that Governor Bricker, who is unopposed for renomination, was not an issue in the Democratic primary May 14.

Kennedy said some of the other issues, including taxes, being used in the Democratic campaign were "bedtime stories." He described as a "demagogue of the first water" any man who promised to eliminate the state sales tax without showing how its revenue would be replaced. Repeal of the sales tax is one of former Gov. Davey's renomination campaign pledges.

White had something to say about taxes, too. He declared the levies enacted during his governorship "had to be passed" and he would not apologize for them. He also advocated increased old age pensions.
